The Coming Days

By Ben Rominske, minister

We are never promised tomorrow. We all know this and are reminded of that fact constantly. We've just finished one time of the year where thankfulness is on many minds given the holiday, but I am reminded that I ought to be thankful all the time. I know thanksgiving is a big part of Christianity and one that we talk about a good bit. All the while, I think about how I write these words days before we assemble without knowing about the day itself.

As children, we would say a prayer before bedtime because we were aware of what could happen. As I got older, my mother always would tell us to drive safely and to remember that it is better to arrive late than to get in an accident. It is undeniable that going through life and enjoying all the moments is quite pleasant as we get lost in creating memories and spending time with loved ones. I am not saying we shouldn't do that but we should make sure we have a healthy respect for the coming days.

- * We ought to have respect for the hard days, times of sorrow, grief, and sadness.
- * We ought to have respect for the days where we achieve goals, make accomplishments, and succeed.
- * We ought to have respect for the ordinary days that lay in between the highs and lows of life.
- * We ought to have respect for the inevitable return of our Lord, and Savior.

Acts 1:10-11 says, "And while they were gazing into heaven as he went, behold, two men stood by them in white robes, and said, 'Men of Galilee, why do you stand looking into heaven? This Jesus, who was taken up from you into heaven, will come in the same way as you saw him go into heaven.'"

I know not what tomorrow will bring but I do know who holds it and I know who I will choose to serve today and every day.
