A Time for Everything

From the desk of Ben Rominske, minister

Ecclesiastes 3:6-8 says, “a time to seek, and a time to lose; a time to keep, and a time to cast away; a time to tear, and a time to sew; a time to keep silence, and a time to speak; a time to love, and a time to hate; a time for war, and a time for peace.” We know there’s time and place for things we ought to do or say. As I prepare for this next week of attending Polishing the Pulpit, I think about this verse. I’ve gone to PTP for well over a decade at this point and it has always been a time for me to learn and better myself.

I try my best to have personal study time amidst my various tasks, but it is during this week I can strive to better myself as a Christian, first and foremost, a husband, and a preacher. I want to do what is best by God, my wife, and by the people here at Watterson Trail that I have the privilege to serve. But, this article isn’t all about me being gone. I want you to be thinking about some things as well (and not just being happy I’m out of town again).

I challenge each of you to find two different things, they can be anything under the sun. With those two things, I ask that you examine them thoroughly and determine for yourself when it is a time for one and a time for the other. I know that there is even a time to eat ice cream and not to. So, there is something to be gained from this!

If we can successfully figure out the appropriate timing for two random things from our lives, then certainly we can apply that skill to our lives as a whole, especially our faith. Ecclesiastes 3:14-15 says, “I perceived that whatever God does endures forever; nothing can be added to it, nor anything taken from it. God has done it, so that people fear before him. That which is, already has been; that which is to be, already has been; and God seeks what has been driven away.
